

Respected as a major product innovator, Pelco, a privately held video security systems manufacturer, is the proven world leader in providing innovative products and technologies for the video security industry. Headquartered in Clovis, California, Pelco is the largest manufacturing employer in Central California and is the largest video security systems manufacturing complex in the world.

Though founded in 1957 in Southern California, the company recognizes the beginning of the "new" Pelco as June 1, 1987, when acquired by its current ownership group. The new owners' goal was for Pelco to become the best video security supplier in the industry. And by implementing a number of programs designed to achieve 100-Percent Customer Satisfaction, along with employee performance incentives based on quality and not quantity, the Pelco business experience quickly earned a legendary reputation.